Investment Objective and Strategies

The High Interest Savings Account Fund (the "Fund") seeks to maximize monthly income while preserving capital and liquidity by investing primarily in high interest deposit accounts.

Risk

There were no changes to the Fund over the period of this report that materially affected the level of risk associated with an investment in the Fund. Prospective investors should read the Fund's most recent prospectus and consider the description of risks contained therein.

Results of Operations

For the year ended December 31, 2025, the Unhedged ETF Units returned 2.6%, the Unhedged Class A Mutual Fund Units returned 2.3%, the Unhedged Class F Mutual Fund Units returned 2.6%, and the Unhedged Class I Mutual Fund Units returned 2.7% after fees and expenses, versus the Bank of Canada Treasury Bills One Month return of 2.6%. The Fund invested solely in bank deposits with Schedule 1 Canadian banks. The Fund's net assets were $2,772.5MM as at December 31, 2025.

Portfolio Manager Commentary

In 2025, the Bank of Canada (the Bank) continued its easing cycle, cutting policy rates by a total of 100 bps since January, including consecutive cuts in September and October. The Bank ended the year on hold, leaving the overnight rate unchanged at 2.25% in December.¹

Governor Tiff Macklem stated that the policy rate is now appropriately positioned to keep inflation near the Bank's 2% target while supporting the economy through a period of structural adjustment. The decision was widely expected, with markets anticipating the Bank will hold rates through at least early 2026 unless economic conditions change materially.¹

Trade policy uncertainty remains a key risk. The Bank highlighted U.S. trade protectionism and CUSMA renegotiations as significant headwinds, estimating that trade conflict could reduce GDP by roughly 1.5%, or about $40 billion, by the end of 2026.¹ Despite these pressures, the Bank expects economic slack to keep inflation contained, even as growth remains modest but resilient.

Recent Developments

In 2026, financial markets are operating in an environment increasingly shaped by heightened geopolitical conflict, most notably the developing war in the middle east. The escalation has triggered sharp moves across global markets, including spikes in oil and gas prices, increased demand for safe haven assets, and renewed volatility in equities, bonds, and foreign currencies. While underlying economic activity remains resilient in several regions, higher energy prices and elevated geopolitical uncertainty have added new risks to inflation trajectories and policy expectations. Governments are reassessing defense spending and trade arrangements, while central banks face a more complex balance between managing inflation pressures and supporting growth. Market volatility has intensified across asset classes, particularly in sectors sensitive to energy costs, geopolitical risk, and global supply chains. The duration and broader economic impact of the conflict remain uncertain, and the potential financial implications for investments continue to evolve as conditions develop.

Related Party Transactions

Evolve Funds Group Inc. (the "Manager"), a corporation incorporated under the laws of the Province of Ontario, is the trustee, manager, and portfolio advisor of the Fund and is responsible for the day-to-day administration of the Fund. The Fund pays annual management fees to the Manager as consideration for its services. Any management fees paid to the Manager are related party transactions, as the Manager is considered to be a related party to the Fund. The management fees are disclosed in the statements of comprehensive income in the annual financial statements of the Fund and are discussed in greater detail below.

The Fund is permitted to purchase, sell and hold securities of certain issuers that are directly or indirectly related to the Manager. With respect to investment in related issuers, the Manager has relied on the approval that it has received from the Investment Review Committee ("IRC"). The Manager complies with its current policy and procedures regarding investments in related issuers and reports periodically to the IRC.
